Ezekiel Jewel DeVinny was born on March 14, 1837 in Blairsville, Pennsylvannia. He married Frances Elizabeth Butterbaugh on March 5, 1863 in Eastun, Indiana County, Pennsylvannia. They were married in Lizzie's father's home while Ezekiel was on a ten-day furlough from the army. They had six children: Harry M. (born December 3, 1865), Belila Jane ("Jennie," born March 15, 1868, died in 1905), Mary E. ("Molly," born March 29, 1871), George P., born December 30, 1875, died in 1960), Alexander (born February 28, 1979 or '80), and Arta Ora (born March 20, 1888). He died on November 5, 1915 and was buried in Gottenburg, Nebraska. He was a carriage maker. He was a blacksmith by trade. he was 5'11" tall. He had blue eyes, light hair, and a fair complexion. His mother's maiden name was Drake.

He enlisted in the Union Army during the Civil War from July 10, 1861 to June 13, 1864. He was sick from August 1862 to September 20, 1862. He applied for a disability pension in 1889, claiming that he had strained himself after the battle of Bull Run in August 1862, causing him to suffer from piles and heart disease. His application was denied. He reapplied and was granted a pension of $12 a month in 1890. It was later increased to $15 a month and again to $30 a month. After the war ended he lived in Pennsylvannia until 1884. He moved to Nebraska and lived there until 1891. Then he lived in Kansas and Indiana Territory for nine months, in Nebraska for seven years, in Colorado for one year, and in Nebraska after that until his death. From 1930 onwards Ezekiel and Lizzie lived in the Soldiers and Sailors Home in Burkett, Nebraska.

[Most of this information is in a diary that Ezekiel DeVinny wrote during the Civil War.]
